Reindeer Games

After arriving back at the North Pole after his recent world-wide tour, Santa kicked back with an eggnog and began to ponder and reflect on the individual talents of his crew.

Comet is one of the smartest members of Santa's sleigh team, and a talented problem-solver. The other reindeer, however, have noticed Comets unusual obsession for peckers and nuts. They've also requested that Santa bump her to the back of the sleigh until she agrees to leave the glitter at home. It's tough to fly behind her with that shit in your eyes!

Cupid is often last to line up to the sleigh drills, yet first to lead the team in Christmas carols! During flight, she keeps the rest of the crew entertained with her Cliff Claven-esque knowledge of other woodland animal species. At reindeer school, voted most likely to steal Santa's cookies.

Blitzen is the queen among reindeer, a true leader. She is the one Santa truly depends on and doesn't need to guide anyone's sleigh to prove she's the boss. She's not fond of carrots, but rather she's known to pack her own lime wedges on long haul trips.

She appears sweet as a candy cane, but don't mess with her or she's quick to punish any overly rambunctious reindeer!

Prancer loves a good time, and he's been known to trot off to see the sights on his own occasionally. Unfortunately, Prancer is also highly accident prone and has returned to the herd on more than one occasion with bumps, bruises, and lacerations. He's gotten tangled up in more than a few satellite dishes through the years. As a result, he's begun carrying his own First Aid kit.

Dasher is one of Santa's fastest reindeer. Although he'd never admit to it, the rest of the herd are convinced that he practises sprints in the off season. He's also highly competitive, and been known to offer false advise in an attempt to throw the other reindeer off track at the reindeer games. Due his cannibalistic tendencies, the other reindeer gladly offer up their rations of carrots to him.

Donner is a skilled reindeer. He takes his duties very seriously, and thinks the younger generation of reindeer have been spoiled by all those participation ribbons Santa awards at the reindeer games nowadays. He graciously hosts the annual reindeer games, providing ample space for the herd to pass out if they happen to over-indulge in a little too much eggnog. Ever concerned for the well-being of the team, he brings hydration to the weekly sleigh drills.

Dancer is named for her incessant jumping up and down before the weekly sleigh-guiding training that drive the other reindeer crazy! Infatuated with all.

Dancer often shows up to the reindeer games with a glowing harness. She secretly holds majority shares in the Blistex Corp.

Vixen is the Mom-figure of the group and keeps all the unruly reindeer in line. She sends out a weekly circular in order to keep the team informed. She may not be the fastest or the strongest but she shows the same endurance as her sleigh-pulling peers. She's energetic and responsive to the leader's requests. Need to get something done? Vixens your gal!

On On,
Happy New Year!
