9 intrepid hashers circled up on a rainy (again) evening. Happy to pass the magic 8!

Weather was looking like rain, but we made it thru Circle Up without it pouring. Introductions were made, flour was laid down and Polar Express demonstrated that she still remembered how to set trail, even though it had been 2 years since she'd hared a run. She'd brought hubby Dirty Pole to do the run with her; apparently Date Night has gotten more informal since they had a kid. It was a little concerning to see the flour drifting away in the puddles, but Polar assured the runners she wouldn't lose them.

The runners, Dick See Cup, Titties 'n Tassles and Chips a Whore, hared by Polar were off after multiple warnings to not get wet. We walkers (Slippery When Wet, Don't Know Dick, and myself Cum See My Box) led by Dirty Pole, knew it would be a long time before we saw the runners again. Of course, it started to rain as soon as we set out, so Dirty Pole set a nice slow pace around the arena and bike paths, dodging the occasional biker and dog walker. There was no mud, no dirt, no hills and some flour so a nice change for a rainy run. We eventually found our way to Rotary Park and refreshments, just as the runners staggered in. Nice to finish together as always.

DKD went to find the washroom and had an altercation with the security guard when he wouldn't unlock the door that he'd just locked 2 minutes before. For a couple of minutes, we thought it was going to result in violence, but she staggered back to the hash hold, and proceeded to down a couple of beers. The refreshments were great; lots of tequila shots and blow jobs for everyone as well different kinds of Oreos and Reeses Pieces not found in the west (smuggled into Alberta from the east coast). It was really great getting caught up with the long lost Polars, hearing about their latest trips and the adventures of Lachlan the Great (hash name??) The last time they hosted a hash hold, they offered their living room as a warming shelter from the -35 degree run. The security guard came over and instead of giving us shit for having boose in the park, he offered DKD her very own private washroom, so she disappeared into the bushes with him. After a long wait and another refreshment for everyone, DKD showed up with a big smile on her face. Back to Circle Up after waiting for a very smart deer to use the sidewalk and bridge, and a stop to admire the mallards cleaning up for their Date Night. Slippery tried to soak Chips and DickSee in the puddles, but it backfired and TNT ended up very wet. Boner stood carefully by, making sure his glowing white shoes didn't get any mud on them.

Beverages were enjoyed and the innuendos continued. The hares were punished for setting a great run and then rewarded for disappearing in the bush for a quickie. DickSee was punished for sword waving and bragging about his recent prowess in a fun foamy event; myself for wearing too many clothes, TNT for getting wet, and Chips for being Chips. Slippery had some very personal comments about how the beer tasted compared to other liquid substances so was rewarded for her outspokenness once the RA could speak again. (I personally found that brand much better than the usual punishment beer). DKD was punished for being a princess and Boner was made to drink out of his very new white shoe. Note to RA: Make sure to punish Boner next week for wearing his second pair of identical new shoes.*

We adjourned to Chillabongs for more laughs. A really great run - too bad so many wimps missed it on account of a few rainclouds.
