Hare: Cum See my Box & Slippery

Start: Heritage ranch

On On: OJ's

Scribe: Dik C Cup

With a gentle dusting of white powder on trail (the cold, frozen kind) the hashers assembled in the Heritage Ranch parking lot. Better late than never, I say...some subpar service delayed the whole pre-lube crew and left myself wondering if I had missed a notice of a secret starting point. I remember a time when the late folks were on the block for a scribe, but somehow the only one on time fell victim to an accidental spin-the-bottle appointment, and here we are. It's been a while and it was certainly a pleasure to see some familiar faces and some new ones (to me) after such an extended absence. I picked a most wonderful return date as we were celebrating the 2 day passing of the 2-2-2-2-2 date which meant only one thing...time to open the 'ol tickle trunk and slap on a Tutu. I even brought a couple extra for the folks that forgot... not getting away that easy people! A good little gaggle of hashers were present: Cum See My Box, TNT, Slippery When Wet, Broken Boner, Pucker Sucker, Curb Crawler, Crash Test Rummy, and myself (Dixie Cup) along with a couple other recent absentees (so I heard) with Prickly Bush making an appearance; ditching her book club to grace us with her presence (although we quickly found out that maybe her book club ditched her). Lost Ann Found also made the trek from outside the local area to join in our woodland adventure. Double digits, Go Team!

A quick review with some moderately recognizable flour markings and we were off. Headlamps and tracks adorned on this beautiful evening through the wilderness. We quickly realized that the example markings were very closely matched to the real trail, leaving us a little puzzled on what? and where? not too far into the expedition. It didn't take us long to lose trail completely. Unfortunately our hare wasn't privy to that portion of the trail so after a solid hunt in and out of the paths, traveled and not, and fear of the walkers consuming all the Beer Near bebies, there was a group decision made to take the long cut to the one-hundred-fifty some staircase where we could be directed to the correct path. The calves are still burning! The continuation of lost direction continued as the folks of the Westlake District had wiped the majority of the markings away with their sidewalk shoveling ways. It was still a most amazing jaunt with a variety of sights to be seen. A pee break here, a death-defying skate across a patch of ice there, left us with a Corps de Ballet at a very beautiful Hash Hold. A view of the Westlake frozen trees and pond back-dropped the smiles of a successful walk and run, despite any detours along the way.

A Tutu walk back to the parking lot for what I didn't know was a momentous Circle Up. Apparently swill and punishments had been in Section C-19 for a while and this was the dawn of a, post-restriction, return to some sort of normalcy; if normalcy is even in a Hasher's vocabulary. Punishments were assigned, along with a celebration or two. Some Vanilla name calling, some book club poo-poo-ing, cheers for the out-of-towner and long lost hashers, along with enough other random charges to finish all the swill cups. Singing, dancing, and drinking (well, more drinking) was certainly welcomed back with open arms (and mouths). I was also surprised to see Boner in pants even though it did chill quite quickly towards the end (maybe a good choice) ...warmer weather is on the horizon! And hopefully we all get to see each other's beautiful faces soon.
