Tacky Tourist Run

Run #1236

Hares: Porcelain Princess

Location: Heritage Ranch

OnOn: Leah's Bar & Grill

I thought I was heading to my monthly birdwatching group and set out with my trusty binoculars. When I went to the usual parking lot, there was no-one there. I heard a lot of twitters, whistling, and honking coming from the trail to the east so I ran over and found a different fu*k flock up. And what a glorious gaggle was assembled! There were hens and cocks of various species, sporting amazingly bright and festive feathers, all under the guise of a Tacky Tourist theme.

For a virgin Hare, the Macaw, Porcelain Princess did a great job. Displaying brilliant green and blue plumage, she didn't have any chalk left for trail demonstrations, but did a great job using sign language (or was that flying lessons?)

First off I saw a Blue-winged Teal named Pussy Foot wearing a brightly feathered duck outfit. Her flockmate Wet Spot, a Tundra Swan – tall, graceful, and a rare visitor - was also sporting beautiful seasonal plumage and a Captain's hat

Other flock members that fly wildly at various speeds in and out of sight were:

- the Mallard drake, Whore Sleigher, a showy creature who kept alternating between running and walking. This rarely seen drake is a master at not being seen when punishments are being given out as well as a great guitar player

- the Great Blue Heron, Sir Wee Little Bladder, a dignified fellow known for his melodious croak as he ambles along at his own pace, hiding in tall grass in order to take photos of other flock members acting badly

- the Flamingo, Grabbin' Wood, known for brilliant plumage, tropical dancing parties and turning red when exposed to crustaceans

- the Great Horned Owl, Lady Miss Daisy, symbol of the goddess Athena, wearing a bright toga and wise enough not to do anything to get noticed by the RA

- the Roadrunner, Dick-see Cup, always the fastest and most energetic, was FRB for a while, then lost trail, jumping in and out of the pigeons, then racing away with a loud beep-beep to catch up and pass the other runners. But not showing any competitive behaviour at all. Hmmmmm. Future punishment???

- the Common Swift, TNT, known for extreme feats of endurance – more later

- the Sora Rail, Don't Know Dick, known for secretively creeping through vegetation and startling people with her loud, weird cries

- the Northern Harrier, Broken Boner, was present, as always the quietly elusive hunter
- the Barn Swallow, Prickly Bush, a swift, darting flier obsessed with feeding family members the perfect combination of food and drink
- the Bald Eagle, Curb Crawler, independent, proud, and very social; known for overseeing large events and spectacular flying feats that generate Beer Clouds
- the Flamingo, Grabbin' Wood, known for brilliant plumage, tropical dancing parties and turning red when exposed to crustaceans
- the Vulture, Mount Me, known for distinctive black feathers and flying long distances for ghoulish social gatherings
- the Robin, Pucker Sucker, a cheerful pathfinder forever bobbing in and out of sight, known as a symbol of good luck, happiness and rebirth as well as for their love of games
- the Bittern, Likes It Hard, known for his amazing ability to blend in with the scenery - it's like he wasn't even at the beginning of the run and only showed up in time for the beer
- the Religious Advisor, a Crow named Mobey's Dick, known for his singing voice, leadership skills and strong sense of mischief as he seemed to want to use all of his toys at once. There were very few who didn't get noticed or pulled out for punishment reward.

After much strolling, running and stair climbing, a tree-lined bower was found, with enough booze and munchies to suit even the greediest of gulls. On to circle up beside the playground where songs were very quietly sung.

Planked were DKD, Boner and Grabbin' for wearing the same outfit. It was noted that the aptly named Titties and Tassels was happy that she was actually wearing underwear for a change, as she whipped off her shirt to show off her sports bra and supremely fit flight muscles while being planked with Curb and Mobey also for wearing the same outfit. Likes It Hard and Cumsee were sleeved for showing up late. And Mount Me was sleeved for wearing boring attire.

We retired to the LBG's patio for excellent food and drinks.

On On,

Cum See My Box
