This week Pucker took us through a tour through the woods.

She also took us through a tour of the darkest parts of our souls. Both literally and figuratively.

The first thing we noticed was that Pucker had obviously been hanging out with other people on her off time without us. There were several Camp U's sprawled out throughout, and they seem like they go a little harder than we do. They take their down downs with literal down! (That's street for heroin for all you squares out there.) It very much reminded me of growing up in small town Alberta, and I could see from many of the other hashers faces that it reminded them of dark pasts they'd rather not share with the rest of you themselves. So I'll share them all for you!

Whoreslayer, who ran in jeans instead of shorts today, did so to hide all of the scars on his legs from long meth benders where he used to stay up for days trying to scratch the meth induced bugs out of his skin.

Don't Know Dick, who used to give away blowjobs for free before she realized she could trade them for smack, had a fore lorn look on her face, lamenting all the times she lost out on 5 bucks.

Wet Spot, who wasn't drinking tonight because she was trying to sober up after having the shakes for the last ten years.

Lady Ms Dazey, thinking of how foolish she was when she tried to make a career out of turning tricks then she still thought magic was involved.

Wee Little bladder, who was still so stoned that he was somehow both there for the symbol portion of the run explanation and missed it at the same time.

Sir Mobey, who's brain has been permanently fried from the unbelievable levels of boredom that only a career in accounting can give you.

Dick See Cup, who only enjoys running deep through the forest because stepping on branches sounds like someone screaming "crack" in the night.

Broken Boner, who died of a fentanyl overdose years ago but we somehow still keep dragging him out for runs.

Cum See My Box, who did so much acid that she kept forgetting to start the songs as song miester because she was sure she was already singing.

And Mount Me, who had to perpetually roll her eyes at this shit because she's seen it all before, with people much more put together than the hashers.

Couple that with half of the group forgetting to bring lights when we were going shiggy in the dark and you have yourself a pretty good party.
