Twass a grand night for a run and a walk, wouldn't you think ? The weather was splendid and surrounded by friends such as Miss Dazey, Sir Mobey, Just Mackenzie, Rear Endy, Just Phillip, Mustang Sally, White Balls, Wet Spot, Pussy Foot, Just Kelsey, Dixie Cup, DKD, Pucker and Wee.

But the night took a wild turn when we left the safety of the parking lot and entered the wilderness. At that point it wasn't just a run, it was a fight for our lives. We had encountered the biggest and angriest swarm of mosquitoes I ever did see. We all start running, and screaming, and waving our hands around like a group of Banshees. People are crying out when they have unfortunately gotten bit by these wild, rabid, angry mosquitoes. But it didn't stop there. They followed us onto somebody's farm, when we ran into some odd looking folks with a couple cases of something we were sure to delight ourselves in after this chaos. And then back into the forest and nearing some ponds or other bodies of water, and I swear I saw the mosquitoes grow fangs and get even more blood thirsty for us poor runners and walkers.

It was a traumatic event to say the least, but at least we weren't alone, and ended the night where drinks and snacks were had, songs sung, mainly “there's a skeeter on my peter whack it off”. Mosquitos may come back for round two, so be warned.

On On!
